DREAMS.

BY CHARLES MACEAY. I dreamed thou wert a fairy harp, Untouched by mortal hand, And , the voiceless sweet west wind, A roamer through the land. I touched, I kissed, thy trembling strings, And lot my common sir, Throbbed with emotion caught from thee, And turned to music rare.

I dreamed thou wort a rose in bloom, And I, the gale of spring, That sought the odors of thy breath, And bore them on my wing-No poorer thou, but richer I,-So rich, that far at sea, The grateful mariners were glad, And bless'd both thee and me.

I dreamed thou wert the evening star, And I, a lake at rest, That saw thine image all the night, Reflected on my breast. Too fart too fart come dwell on earth! Be barp, and rose of Mayt I need thy music in my heart, Thy fragrance on my way.

MRS. LOFTY AND I.

So do I: She has dapple greys to draw it, None have I; She's no prouder with her coachman, Than am It With my blue-eyed, laughling baby

Mrs. Lofty keeys a carriage,

Trundling by; I hide his face lest she should see, The cherub boy and envy me. Her fine husband has white fingers, Mine has not;

He could give his bride a palace,--Mine, a cot. Her's comes home beneath the starlight, Ne'er cares she; Mine comes in the purple twilight, Kimes mo. And prays that He who turns life's sands

Will hold his loved ones in his hands.

Mrs. Lofty has her jewels,

So have I: She wears her's on her bosom--Inside I; She will leave her's at death's portal, By, and by; I shall bear my treasure with me When I die, For I have love and she has gold-

She counts her wealth-mine can't be told She has those who love her station, None have I, But I've one true heart beside me; Glad am I; I'd not change it for a kingdom,

No, not L. God will weigh it in His balance, Bye and bye, And the difference define 'Twixt Mrs. Lofty's wealth and mine.

You've Woven Roses round my Way' You've woven roses round my way, And gladdened all my being; How much I thank you none can say, Bave only the All-seeing.

May He who gave this lovely gift, This love of lovely doing, Be with you wherenoo'er you go, In gvery hope's pursuing!
